INTERPRETATION / Read the source definition before comparing areas.
Single observations do not establish trends. Missing is not zero; the index is not an affordability ranking.

Inspect the observations.

Exact values, geography and reporting dates. Filter before interpreting; no mixed-unit totals.

Dates are observation dates, not publication dates. A missing area or date has no observation.
Percentage shares retain their source fractions and use percentage formatting; 0.426 = 42.6%.

Data quality is part of the report.

Preserved source. Explicit transformations. Checks that stop ambiguous series entering the model.

SOURCE & SCOPE

HUD Local Housing Statistics, preserved April 2026 extract.
Source-wide dates: 1996 to April 2026; selected series have shorter histories.
67 territorial authorities. No regional-council field or invented national aggregate.

RULES FOR INTERPRETATION

Exact series, unit and population filters; duplicate selected keys stop the build.
No averaging of repeated source keys, no interpolation, no missing-to-zero fill.
Rent affordability index is a change indicator, not an affordability league table.
Consents are intentions to build; a single rent snapshot does not establish a trend.
